PHIT000004

ABSTRACT:

The processor (106) of an image processing unit (100) searches a received image for the presence of an original object of a predetermined appearance. If such an object is found, the processor (106) replaces the original object by a substitute object of a desired appearance. Subsequently, the image processing unit (100) outputs the modified image.

5

Figure 1